Two Views of the Urge to Live

Paragraph
The difference between a village and a city is that in a city a truck driver comes out of an alley slowly and silently and looks up at the street, while in a village the truck driver rushes out of an alley and honks.

A friend of mine happens to be head of one of the great industrial firms of America. He is Edward J. Hanley, president of Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation of Pittsburgh, Pa., manufacturer of stainless steel.

What does Big Business think and say in those unrecorded hours when it isn't embroiled with government bureaus or labor unions? It's important to know this, because the Pacific hours vastly outnumber the quarrelsome ones. Mr. Hanley spoke to the young men graduating from Duquesne university at Pittsburgh this year, and to these boys starting a career he said:

"More recently, risk taking is losing some of its popularity. We have been laying greater stress on the question of economic security. About 15 years ago the Federal Social Security law became effective and in the last few years we have seen no end of pension plans provided in labor contracts. I have no quarrel with the objective of economic security for the individual. That is what you will be seeking when you begin tomorrow the job of earning a living. I do think you will be much better satisfied with your final status, however, if you work out your own program instead of taking what the state or your employer's pension plan offers. Don't, I beg of you, approach your first employer with a request for the details of his pension plan."

And as a commentary on the smart and cynical times in which we live Mr. Hanley told this story: "An old Negro lived in a shanty on the outskirts of Charleston, S. C. He was not educated in the academic sense. What he lacked in book learning he made up in a keen observation over nearly a century of living.

"This old man was looked upon by the people of the area as something of a philosopher and a prophet—even a mystic. A few years ago, two young men decided to disprove his powers for once and all. They caught a small bird, and one cupped it in his hand with the idea of asking the old man whether it was alive. If the old man said 'no' the youth planned to release the bird, letting it fly away. If he said 'yes' the youth planned to crush the bird to death instantly.

"The old man would be in a predicament with no solution. It was to be his Waterloo and the youths had a small crowd of friends to witness his embarrassment.

"The ringleader held the bird out in his hands and posed the question, 'Is it alive or dead?'"

"The old Negro looked into the youth's eyes and said softly, 'That, my friends, is in your hands.'"

50 Persons Die in Crash of Airline Plane

By the Associated Press

Fifty persons were killed this morning when their air liner crashed within five minutes of reaching its destination on a transcontinental flight. The United Airlines four-engine ship plunged into the crest of a hill near Oakland, California. There were no survivors.

The plane left Boston last night for Oakland, and it was flying non-stop from Chicago when it crashed. About ten miles southeast of Oakland, three minutes before the unexplainable crash, the pilot had made a routine report to his control tower and he said nothing about any trouble.

Earlier, it was believed that 47 or 48 persons were killed, later the airline said that 44 passengers and six crew members were aboard and that all were killed. A flaming engine dropped off a B-29 near MacDill air force base. Airmen said that the pilot, lieutenant Paul Greenwade (of Farmville, Texas) brought the big ship in just like a fighter.

Foreign Aid Bill Ready for Senate

Washington, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Two committees had a $7,535,000,000 foreign aid bill all but wrapped up today for early delivery to the senate. The bill is the result of a compromise between the House and Senate committees on foreign aid.

Remaining to be disposed of by the senate foreign relations and armed services committees before they can act finally, was a move by Senator Aiken (I-Vt.) and others to include in the bill authorization for the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Members indicated it was only a matter of time until they would reject the Aiken proposal. In the meantime, the committees had juggled their figures around from previously house-approved totals to increase Near East economic aid by $37,000,000 to a total of $122,500,000. This would include $50,000,000 for rehabilitation of Palestine refugees.

The senate committees had voted previously to split up the authority under the program, giving Secretary of Defense Marshall direction of military aid; the state department, "point four" aid to backward areas to the world; and the economic cooperation administration (ECA), general economic assistance until the agency itself expires next July 1.

Disputes would be settled by an individual or board appointed by President Truman.

Mr. Truman would be directed to turn over ECA's powers to some existing agency by March 30 and the powers themselves would die in 1954.

Kaufman, who has held the job for five years, is free on $5,000 bond.

Hempstead Is Represented at 4-H Camp

Hempstead County was represented at Petit Jean State Park 4-H Leadership camp Monday through Thursday by Kay Kent of Patmos and Howard Smith of Greenway.

The camp was attended by a 4-H Club boy and girl from 40 Arkansas Counties. The purpose of the Petit Jean Mountain Camp was to develop leadership in recreation and personality. All of the program was developed on the basis of a group thinking conference. The youths stayed at Hardison Hall which is especially arranged for such group activities. Miss Kent and Howard reported that all campers agreed that it was one of the outstanding State 4-H Club events.

The Hempstead County youth expect to carry the training secured by them to all of their fellow 4-H clubbers of the county during the coming year.

Fear 50 Dead as Flood Hits Mexican Town

Mexico City, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Fifty persons were feared dead today from the flood of a bursting dam which yesterday wiped out a whole village in the wake of a spent-out hurricane.

The dam at Cardenas, 150 miles north of here, crumbled under the pressure of heavy rains which followed a killer hurricane. The hurricane itself had left more than 150 dead in Jamaica, slammed into the Gulf of Mexico and left one person dead in the oil port city of Tampico before spending itself against the Mexican mountains.

The government railways said 27 bodies of persons living in the town a few hundred feet below the dam — had been recovered. About 23 others were missing. Searchers were still hunting in the corn fields below the dam.

The 60-foot dam, holding some 375,000,000 gallons of water for the railway shops at Cardenas, gave way about noon yesterday after more than seven inches of rain had fallen in 24 hours.

The dam broke without warning and cut a cluster of 75 railway workers' homes to the foundations. A relief train to Cardenas was held up by a landslide which covered nearly a mile of the tracks.

Word from the train was that it would be many hours before it could get through. Meanwhile, Tampico began digging itself out of the mud and debris left by the hurricane. Troops patrolled the streets to prevent looting and the residents were kept in their candle-lit homes by a 9 p. m. curfew. Damage was expected to run far above $1,000,000 and Associated Press Correspondent Robert F. Allen said about 1,000 lightly built houses were blown down. Work was going ahead to restore communications and lights and clear the roads and railways. About half the 10,000 refugees from the lowlands around Tampico had returned to their battered homes. The rest still were housed in churches and other public buildings. Water still covered some parts of the city.

There are fears that Tampico's troubles are not yet over. The torrential rains were expected to swell the Panuco and Tamesi rivers over their banks within the next week when inland waters began pouring in.

Eight Airmen Escape in Crash

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 24 — (AP)—Eight Randolph air force base men escaped from a burning B-29 Superfort yesterday. They parachuted to safety before the big plane crashed in its approach for a landing.

All the fliers caught rides back to the base hospital for routine checks.

Capt. Robert D. McDonald of Palatine, Ill., the aircraft commander, gave the order for the men to bail out.

Emil Heye, a witness, said the plane, trailing fire from the right wing, slipped into a spiral and crashed with a terrific explosion and burned.

Aboard the big bomber before the crash were Capt. McDonald, Second Lt. Norman L. Croy of Advanville, Mo.; Staff Sgt. Joe R. Noah of San Francisco; Staff Sgt. Duane C. Post of Mantua, Ohio; Staff Sgt. William B. Gittinger of Johnston, Pa.; Pfc. Leland R. McQuillin of Englewood, N. J.; First Lt. Stephen T. Sliss of Randolph AFB; and Pfc. Robert McSpadden, Col.

Man Who Used Bicycle, Car and Boat to Escape Posse, Is Arrested in Oregon

Texarkana—A 30-year-old man who dramatically escaped officers of three counties several months ago has been arrested in Le Grande, Oregon.

The man, identified by the FBI as Everett Rhinehart, 30, of Springfield, Ohio, is wanted by Sheriff Burl Keenan of Ashdown on a charge of burglary and grand larceny.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation issued a nationwide pickup order for the man and the search centered in Oregon where his brother lives.

Oregon troopers said Rhinehart was wounded in the leg by gunfire when he refused to stop at two road blocks set up by officers. He broke through both roadblocks and fled until forced to halt. He was reported to have been driving a stolen Cadillac automobile.

The Ashdown sheriff said he was informed that the car contained six loaded revolvers when state officers searched it. It is not known whether he will be returned to Arkansas.

Rhinehart was arrested several months ago by Texarkana, Texas, officers for routine questioning and a check on the car which he was driving.

While being taken to the police station he broke away and fled on foot. A citywide search disclosed that Rhinehart stole a bicycle and headed toward Ashdown.

At Ashdown he was reported to have abandoned the bicycle and stole a motor scooter. He eluded a wide search in the Red River bottoms and fleeing in the direction of Fulton, downriver.

The search moved to Fulton where Rhinehart abandoned the boat and managed to escape by hitching a ride. He was later traced to Hope, where the trail vanished.

Picket Line Fails to Close Plant

Pine Bluff, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Striking CIO woodworkers have thrown up a picket line around a Pine Bluff Flooring company, but officials of the plant said operations will continue.

The 200 members of the International Woodworkers association struck Wednesday. The picket line was established yesterday.

J. G. Smith, a spokesman for the company — the Arkansas Oak Flooring Co. — said the plant would remain open and that employment is being offered to persons who want to work.

G. G. Goolsby, a representative of the union, said about 26 non-union employees remained on their jobs.

L. L. Robinson, another union official, said the strike was called when negotiations broke down over proposed changes in the work contract.

Union men said the next move in the deadlock was up to management and "we're making arrangements for a determined fight."

But Smith said that management had not been officially notified that a strike existed.

Both sides said no arrangements had been made to continue negotiations.

Robinson said the union is demanding six paid holidays a year, paid Christmas vacations, check-off of union dues; 30-minute daily rest periods; a company paid insurance program, and eight-hour day and a 40-hour week with time and a half for overtime, and a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase.

Says Soviets to Demand a 'Just Peace'

Berlin, Aug. 24 — (AP)—The Russian-controlled press here said today that the Soviet Union's delegation is going to San Francisco to demand a "really just" peace treaty for the Japanese and opposing American plans to "bring control of all Japan as a base for aggression against China and the Soviet Union."

A sharp attack on the U. S. prepared treaty to be presented at San Francisco was published in the Soviet-controlled National Zeitung. It was accompanied by reports in other Russian-controlled papers proclaiming Communist opposition to the peace conference, from which Peking has been excluded.

There have been suggestions Russians might pull a surprise at San Francisco and sign the treaty. If such a scheme is afoot there has been no hint of it in Russian-controlled newspapers here.

The national Zeitung's article was unsigned. It purported to be an expose of "America's plans in the Far East."

The article accused the United States of "arbitrarily" drafting a treaty for Japan and unilateralism, calling the San Francisco conference "America's Pacific base."

"America's aim in the Pacific has been clear from the start and this 'peace treaty' is part of the plan," said the Zeitung. "All American moves have served one goal—to create a base for aggression against China and the Soviet Union. Japan is assigned the role of advance base — just as West Germany is assigned that role in Europe."

"The ruling circles in America are trying to make Japan totally dependent upon the U. S., economically and strategically, so that this forward base can be achieved. The People's Republic of China was excluded from the 'peace conference' by order of the United States."

"However, the representatives of the Soviet Union will participate in the San Francisco conference. And they will raise their voices there — in the name of all peace-loving peoples of the world for a 'really just' peace in the Far East."

Schools to Get More Revenue Locally

By LEN HATCH

Little Rock, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Increases in property tax levies may net Arkansas' public school system some $5,000,000 a year more in revenue at the local level.

To be sure, this is only a rough calculation and may be far wide of the mark.

This is the way it was figured: A state education department official made a spot check of 40 widely scattered school districts in the state.

He found that the district were seeking an average increase of more than eight mills in their levies at the state-wide school elections, Sept. 25.

Properly in the state is assessed for tax purposes at around $800,000,000.

Assuming that the eight mill figure holds good for the state at large — a broad assumption, of course — that would mean around $5,000,000 a year more money.

Due to a "holdback" formula prescribed by the state education department, only an estimated $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 would be available during 1952-53, the school year for which elections were held.

For the present fiscal year 1951-52, the millage was set at the 1950 school election.

Millage indicates the rate at which property taxes are paid for school and other purposes. Thus if a school district has an 18-mill rate, it means it pays 18 mills, or 1.8 cents, on each dollar of assessed valuation.

The millage for schools is proposed by directors of each district. If voters reject a proposed increase, the millage in that district continues at the current rate.

State education department officials pointed to financial difficulties which have beset Arkansas schools recently and said they believed it improbable that many—if any—districts would turn down proposals for increases.

Apparently most of the state's 421 districts are seeking millage increases for 1952-53. No complete picture will be available, however, until official reports are received by the education department—and they are not due for months yet.

Increases being asked run from as little as two mills for some districts to a surprising 30 mills in the case of the Watson district of Desha county—a rate that would amount to a 100 per cent boost over the present 30 mills.

Some districts on which information was received in an unofficial compilation by the Associated Press plan to operate without an increase.

No district reported that it was seeking a lower rate than the present one.

Ludson, N. Y., Aug. 24 — (AP)—Crew members chafed a nostalgic farewell on the sides of engine 7047. The New York Central steam engine is being replaced by a diesel locomotive.

Reds Appear to Be Getting Set for New Drive

By GERGE A. McARTHUR

U. S. 8th Army Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Increased numbers of Communist troops appeared today along the eastern half of the Korean front, possibly building up for a new offensive.

Allied observers spotted two large Red troop concentrations north of Yangju in the eastern mountains and above Kumhwa, eastern anchor of the old "Iron Triangle" in the center of the front.

Small groups of Reds were observed all along the front.

The increased Red build-up could signalize either preparations for an offensive or simply a concerted effort all along the front to relieve battle-worn units.

Air strikes and artillery fire were called down about 1,000 Reds with 200 trucks moving toward Yangju from the north. About 1,000 Chinese with pack animals were seen moving south toward Kumhwa. However, in late afternoon, a number of small groups with pack animals were seen going north.

If the Reds are preparing for attack, Gen. James A. Van Fleet said his Eighth Army is ready for them and will stop them.

The U. N. ground commander said the Reds probably have more artillery and tanks than they've used before—"It's something serious to think about—but the enemy cannot beat the Eighth Army."

A new Red offensive, Van Fleet said, "would play into our firepower. If we can get them out in the open we would have a beautiful shot."

The 25th Air Force reported 110 bombers surprised Reds trying to ferry supplies across a river in Northwest Korea, north of Pyongyang. At least 100 Red vehicles, tanks and large quantities of supplies were reported destroyed.

The attacks started by 24-48 a.m. on Sunday.

Fifty-one other shooting attacks bombed and strafed a convoy. Ground action centered on the extreme eastern front.

A day-long battle raged for control of an L-shaped ridge west of Koesong.

South Koreans captured one more dominating height and now control all features of the ridge line. However, long range fighting continued on the ridge throughout the day.

U. S. Ready to Quit Trading With Czechs

Washington, Aug. 24 — (AP)—Congress has called up a 445-to-1 majority in favor of suspending U. S. trade with Czechoslovakia until that Communist nation frees Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis.

The senate okayed the resolution yesterday, 81 to 0. The house passed it, Aug. 14, 382 to 1. Only Rep. Wood (R-Iowa) dissented because the resolution called for United Nations help.

Senate action, considered a blow to attacks on the Czech regime and some criticism of the state department, is final. The resolution does not require signature by President Truman.

Neither is it binding on the government. It merely expresses the "profound indignation and progress over the arrest and unjust conviction of Czechs."

He was convicted by a court on espionage charges, pronounced by the government baseless, and sentenced to ten years in prison.

Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) during a discussion of the bill said that this country should not have any diplomatic or trade relations with Czechoslovakia.

Senator Dirksen (R-Ill.) said that the Czechs are a "people who are not fit to be trusted."

Reports Tackett as a Candidate

Little Rock, Aug. 23 —(AP)—The Arkansas Democrat said today U. S. Rep. Boyd Tackett of Nashville will run for governor in 1952 if he can get campaign funds that won't "hugle" him.

The newspaper said the congressman made this conditional announcement in a telephone interview this morning.

Tackett's fourth congressional district was combined with other western Arkansas district, the seventh, when a loss in population forced Arkansas to reduce its number of representatives in the house from seven to six beginning in 1953.

And, the Democrat quoted Tackett as saying he probably would run for congress against seventh district Rep. Owen Harris next year if he decides not to seek the governor's office.

Tackett was quoted as saying he didn't think Governor McMath would run for a third term next summer, adding:

"We've had only one Jeff Davis, and I don't see any around here now."

Davis was the only governor of Arkansas elected to three terms.

Would Allow Mention of Insurance

Little Rock, Aug. 23 —(AP)—Garland county Rep. James R. Campbell proposed today that a plaintiff in a damage suit be allowed to disclose that the defendant has insurance.

Under Arkansas law such a disclosure is invalid.

Campbell suggested that the law be changed in a resolution prepared for presentation to the Arkansas legislative council at a meeting here Aug. 31.

The resolution said that the insurer is "in reality the real party and united in interests with the defendant."

The law often works an injustice upon the plaintiff, Campbell said.

He proposed that the council's research department make a study of pertinent laws of other states and report its findings to the council.

Thereafter, a bill would be prepared to change the law. The bill would be presented to the 1953 legislature for its consideration.

In another resolution, Campbell also proposed that the research department study act 140 of 1949 with a view to redrafting it.

Act 140 sets up a new code relating to procedure in probate courts.

Campbell pointed to one subsection which he said was ambiguous.

Forget Past Love

Sister Kenny to Help Find Cure

New York, Aug. 24 —(AP)—Sister Elizabeth Kenny, who has devoted her lifetime to fighting infantile paralysis, says she has given her failing body to medical science to fight Parkinson's disease.

In a news conference yesterday, she said she is under treatment in her native Australia for the disease, a chronic nervous disorder causing shaking, palsy and muscular weakness.

"I'm a guinea pig," she added, "I'm giving my body as an experiment."

The 66-year-old nurse (Australians call their nurses sisters), who treats polio by massage and manipulation of the limbs, said a cure for that disease is not far off.

The polio cure, she said, may come in the form of a simple injection under the skin of some other simple therapeutic measure.

Sister Kenny talked to reporters before her scheduled departure for Copenhagen to attend the second international poliomyelitis conference opening Sept. 2.

Little Rock, Aug. 24 —(AP)—Beer permits of two Springdale, Ark., dealers have been suspended for 15 days.

George Callahan, executive director of the alcoholic beverage control board, yesterday suspended the state permits on the ground that both dealers had sold beer to intoxicated persons.

The permits were held by Wayne Webb High, operator of the Blue Castle cafe, and Edgar Lee Denney, operator of the Ozark tavern.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 24 —(AP)—A guard at the General Electric company plant stopped a man without an identification badge.

Sent off to get a temporary pass, the man returned with one showing he was Lewis J. Marc, plant manager. He had forgotten his badge.

Dear Miss Dix: Seven years ago I was very much in love, but we parted and both have since married. Now my sweetheart of old has come back into my life. He wants me to go out with him, and says he still loves me. I love him too and don't want to lose him again. Should I continue seeing him now, or wait until he gets his freedom?

ESTHER

Answer: My advice is short and to the point: Send him back to his wife and forget you ever saw him again! Don't say you can't do it, that you can't forget him! Decency and prudence have no other course. You're just building romantic castles in the air out of nothing. Come down to earth and look facts in the face. You're a daydreamer, Esther, and while occasional dreams are fun, it is the reality of everyday existence that forms our lives.

Renounce Him

By creating a big remuneration scent, you'll be able to spend the rest of your life with a slightly shattered heart, which will give her a herculean task to humdrum days ahead. This will be a good deal more satisfactory than breaking up two homes, and embarking on a second marriage that will itself, be broken before too long. Two unstable people cannot make a satisfactory home, and both of you and your sweetheart are too vacillating to make a worthy attempt at settling down.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl of 19, engaged to a boy 22. We have been going together for three years and are very much in love. He is very kind and I know he would make a good husband. My mother, however, does not approve of him. She would like me to marry a professional man with no family ties. My boy friend works in a dairy, never finished high school, and has his mother to support. I don't think I could ever learn to like his mother. Another problem is that I want to start at the university this fall. I plan to be an art teacher. If I decide to marry next spring I probably won't finish the course. Is our love strong enough to conquer these difficulties or will they

as our friends believe, conquer us? BETTY
Answer: "Love conquers all," you know and it's more than just the title of a play. You do have a lot of difficulties to overcome, and some of them may easily lead to trouble after marriage. I think you should postpone your wedding until you finish your university course. This seems like a long time, but I agree with your friends you probably won't finish if you marry earlier. Having a profession such as you will be trained for is an asset not to be lightly discarded.

Another obstacle that deserves long and careful thought on your part is your future mother-in-law. Since your boy friend is her sole support, you will probably have to share your home with her. The uncongeniality existing between you both will certainly not be conducive to a harmonious home. Continue your education, and give careful thought to your other problems which are not trivial ones.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young widow with a 6-year old son. I have been going steadily with an older professional man for several years. He is separated from his family. He makes me out occasionally but most of the time just makes himself completely at home at my house, where he eats most of his meals. I care for him, but he says he can't get a divorce because "the" Reformation scandal would be detrimental to his professional standing. What do you think his intentions toward me are?

LAURA
Answer: Your friend's intention are simple to make things as easy and pleasant for himself as possible. He'll enjoy the hospitality of your home and your cheerful companionship as long as convenient, then—well, you can just worry about yourself! This may seem a callous summing up of the situation, but it's better you may face the bitter truth now than wait for a tragic disillusionment later.

Board Can Call School Elections

Little Rock, Aug. 23 —(P)—Special school elections may be called by school boards without official proclamation by the state, the Arkansas attorney general's office said today.

An opinion prepared by Assistant Atty. Gen. Cleveland Holland said that 403 of 1001 provisions that the school district board of directors shall give notice of election by advertisement once a week for three weeks prior to each election.

Santiago, Chile is named for Saint James.

Sunday School LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Some years ago I was writing editorials for THE CONGREGATIONALIST, the paper begun on Boston's Beacon Hill over a hundred-and-twenty-five years ago that has never missed a single weekly issue. I wrote an editorial on the question, "Is Mr. Ford Too Rich?"

The Mr. Ford of the editorial was the famous Henry, but the reference was personal only as Mr. Ford typified the inventor, who had made a great and almost revolutionary contribution to society and immenses a great fortune.

Info that editorial I put all that I had learned in nine years of academic study of economics and sociology. Yet I had the humiliation of discovering that, so far as I knew, not a single individual from the Atlantic to the Pacific had read it.

Less important things that I had written had occasioned plenty of comment and controversy, and an occasional article, written chiefly to fill space, I found rather widely copied and quoted. But later I found that the "Mr. Ford" editorial had not gone altogether unread, or missed its mark.

Its mark was not Mr. Ford, but you and I. Its point was this: Without that great organization we call "society", Mr. Ford's invention would have been as useless as if it had been concocted in the depths of some far-off desert. So, though he realized it, or not, Mr. Ford owed more to society than society owed to him.

And you and I owe more to society than society owes to us. It is not only that we are members of another, but we are units in a vast and complicated organization upon which we depend for the very life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, that we choose to regard as our heritage.

Last week I suggested the problems and confusions with which we are confronted under the pressure, possible perils, and changed conditions, in which our liberties have been restricted. What is our Christian duty in relation to the tense issues of today? And how are Christian leaders meeting these issues, so marked with bitter controversies, conflicts, accusations and smearings?

Frankly, I think that Christian leadership is failing!

Differences of interests, differences of judgements and aims, differences about actions and policies, are inevitable. But it is inevitable that men should differ with hatred and scorn.

The very tenseness of the situation and issues of today makes all the more necessary the attainment and practice of the virtues that the Christian way enjoins—patience, forbearing, elemental honesty in speech and acts.

If we are to pay our debt to society, we must begin by heeding the wise injunction of St. Paul: "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others."

Latest Data on Wages Is Explained

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 24 —(P)— This explains how employees and employers can learn what they need to know about wage rates, now that the government has all wages under the control of the wage stabilization board.

(Everything in this story deals with wages except at the end where salaries are handled separately.)

So far WSB has issued 15 general regulations on wage rates for individuals and groups of employees. They are extremely complicated. In one case an employer can give a raise without WSB permission. In others he must get WSB approval first.

The regulations cut across the whole field of American work. But because there are so many different kinds of businesses, doing different kinds of work, and with different methods of pay, employers and employees may be puzzled.

The employee may wonder whether or the boss is misleading him when he says WSB regulations won't permit raises in his case; and an employer may wonder whether he can give a raise and how he goes about it.

An employee must remember this: No matter what he finds out, the WSB can't force the boss to give him a raise. That's a problem for the man and his boss. The WSB simply sits on raises. It can't compel them.

The employee and the employer can go one of these two places for information:

1. The wage-hour office nearest you. There are about 80 wage-hour offices of the wage-hour division of the labor department scattered around the country. They are not part of WSB. They're another and separate government agency. But they're chipping in to help WSB on a big job.

2. WSB itself has opened offices in 14 large cities: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Dallas, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Denver, San Francisco, Seattle.

What can you get at the wage-hour offices? Copies of the regulations particularly the one which applies to your case, plus examples of how it works in a case similar to yours. And the wage-hour staff may be able to give you additional verbal information.

At the 15 WSB offices you'll get copies of the regulations, and examples to fit your case, plus explanations from the WSB staff's which have been drilled on these regulations.

Suppose, after such a visit, you're convinced you're one of the employers who can raise wages without direct WSB permission. What do you do?

Go ahead and arise them within the limits set forth in the regulation but — then you must file a report on what you did with the wage-hour office, not with the WSB office. The wage-hour people will forward your report to WSB.

The latter will check over your report. If you were in error, WSB will tell you so and tell you to correct it.

Suppose you decide you're one of the employers who must get WSB permission to raise wages. You file an application for permission to do so. Even if you file it with the wage-hour office, not with WSB. The wage-hour will forward the application to WSB. Then the latter will consider your case and give a ruling.

While wages are controlled by WSB, salaries are under the control of another board, the salary stabilization board.

This board decides the problems of people who are not on a 40-hour week, who are not entitled to overtime, or are executives.

Anyone puzzled about a salary raise question should write directly to the salary stabilization board in the Federal Security Building, South, Washington, D. C. This board doesn't yet have a field office arrangement for answering questions.

Sin and a snake...a rattlesnake! How fearful we are of the rattlesnake! And rightfully we should be. A few hundred of our people are bitten each year...many of them die from this poisonous venom. But more poisonous than the snake is SIN. Beware! Be on the lookout for your soul's enemy number one. The snake only destroys the body. Sin blights the soul.

We must develop the same horror and tragic fear for another poisonous monster...alcohol. More than 750,000 of America's men are sick this very minute with the terrible disease of alcoholism. They have been poisoned in body and shackled in will and crippled in mind. Their work suffers and their families are stricken with fear and anxiety for their healing. Bellevue Hospital in New York, in one recent year, admitted 12,084 cases of alcoholics.

Lukewarm church people have allowed the worldly to criticize churches...advertise vice...ostracize preachers...minimize righteousness...and practically idolize the ungodly. This terrible situation cannot be allowed to gain sway. In these days we must liquidate complacency. We must think thoroughly and act swiftly, well and firm. A barrel of "rusty, deadly poisonous rattlesnakes" is a horrible sight but the most pathetic sight is an alcoholic.
